Architect-designed luxury wall light

English architect John Glew designed this range of wall lights for izé. Fellow architect Tony Fretton has said that they 'display a characteristic attempt to find both poetry and function in a set of sparse, utilitarian but considered components. They present solutions for a range of applications often poorly covered by existing products, unself-conscious and elegant.' This is the smallest light in the range. Like all izé luxury products, the light is available in the full range of izé materials.
